'Fall' Into the Friends of the Library Fall 2014 Book Sale at Central Library

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (October 1, 2014) – Readers of all ages should “fall” into the Benjamin L. Hooks Central Library (3030 Poplar Avenue) 10 am – 4:30 pm on Friday, October 24 and Saturday, October 25, 2014 for the Friends of the Library Fall Book Sale. With a wide variety of new inventory and all items priced at $2 or less, this book sale is a collector’s dream come true!

“We’re constantly getting new things, new CDs, DVDs, hardback and paperback books, and lots more,” said Jacque Jenkins, Friends of the Library president. “Even if you come on Friday, you can return on Saturday and find something different, especially for collectors! You’re always going to find new items.”

Friends of the Library members enjoy the finest picks at a special preview sale from 8 am to 10 am on Friday, October 24. Avid readers interested in becoming Friends members can sign up at any Memphis Public Library branch or online and receive discounts at the book sale – a great opportunity for parents to cash in.

“We have tons of items that help to build family night,” Jenkins commented. “Sometimes, parents can find a book and movie to match. One night you can read the book together and then, watch the movie another night. The Friends of the Library Fall Book Sale is the perfect chance for parents and children to read and learn together.”

With affordable prices, book lovers can stock up without worries of overspending. A price list is below.
